about us

We are a UK development consulting company. We undertake extensive research on technology, social, environmental, economic and political development challenges. We undertake the crafting of integrated development strategies for implementation; and provide personalised advice to public, social and private sector organisations and governments around the world. Our key drivers are high ethical standards and the delivery of value.

We offer application based short training, and consultancy services; products of in-depth research aimed at overcoming the challenges of our increasingly complex operating environments. We emphasise practical applications to theoretical models with the aim of improving individual, organisation and systems performance.

Our team of experts and consultants constantly work together to provide new perspectives to issues and to deliver integrated solutions that meet the needs of our global, diverse and dynamic market environments. Our consultants have many years of experience in the UK and internationally especially in developing countries.

We offer open and bespoke training tailored to suit the needs of individual customers. Training can be conducted in the UK and overseas. We also provide executive coaching services to management staff.
